Statewide Survey of Political Independents in Virginia

July 2007

---

Methodology

The Washington Post/Kaiser Family Foundation/Harvard University Survey Project is a three-way partnership and an experiment in combining survey research and reporting to better inform the public. The Post, Kaiser, and Harvard jointly design and analyze surveys examining public knowledge, perceptions, and misperceptions on major issues. The Post then reports the results as well as facts to dispel myths and misperceptions. Our hope is that this project contributes to a better understanding of public knowledge on major issues facing the country as well as more effective efforts by the media to educate, inform, and engage citizens in national debates.

The Survey of Political Independents is the 16th survey in this partnership series. A nationwide survey was conducted from May-June, 2007, and results are reported separately (national topline can be found at: www.kff.org/kaiserpolls/pomr070107pkg.cfm). This document reports results of a companion survey of Virginia residents, which was conducted by telephone from May 3 to June 3, 2007 among 1,708 randomly selected adults living in the state of Virginia, including small oversamples of randomly selected self-identified independents and Republicans to ensure at least 500 interviews in each group for analysis purposes. Interviews were conducted in English and Spanish. Results are weighted to adjust for the additional interviews, and to ensure the data are reflective of the demographics of the actual adult population of Virginia in terms of age, race, ethnicity, sex, education, and region. Results are not weighted to any external estimate of party ID. The table below shows the number of interviews and margin of sampling error for key subgroups.

Population	Number interviewed	Margin of sampling error
Total	1,708	± 3 percentage points
Independents	551	± 5 percentage points
Democrats	516	± 5 percentage points
Republicans	507	± 5 percentage points

Representatives of The Washington Post, The Henry J. Kaiser Family Foundation, and Harvard University worked together to develop the survey questionnaire and analyze the results. Each organization bears the sole responsibility for the work that appears under its name. The project team included Jon Cohen, The Washington Post director of polling and Jennifer Agiesta, polling analyst; Drew E. Altman, president of the Kaiser Family Foundation, Mollyann Brodie, vice president and director of public opinion and media research, and Elizabeth Hamel, associate director of public opinion and media research; and Robert J. Blendon, professor of health policy and political analysis at the Harvard School of Public Health and the John F. Kennedy School of Government, and John M. Benson, managing director of the Harvard Opinion Research Program in the Harvard School of Public Health. Telephone interviews were carried out by ICR/International Communications Research.

Please note: (1) Table percentages may not add to 100% due to rounding. (2) Values less than 0.5% are indicated by an asterisk (*). (3) "Vol." indicates that a response was volunteered by the respondent and not an explicitly offered choice. (4) Sampling error is only one of many potential sources of error in this or any other public opinion poll.

1. What one issue or problem would you say is most important for the president and Congress to address at this time? Is there a second issue that you think is almost as important for the president and Congress to address? (OPEN-ENDED)
