Massachusetts Special Election Poll

January 2010

Methodology

The Washington Post/Kaiser Family Foundation/Harvard University Survey Project is a three-way partnership and an experiment in combining survey research and reporting to better inform the public. The Massachusetts Special Election Poll, the 19th in this partnership series, was conducted by telephone from January 20 to January 21, 2010 among a random sample of respondents age 18 and older living in Massachusetts. Interviews were conducted via landline telephone and cell phone and included 880 Massachusetts adults who say they voted in the special election on January 19th (referred to as “voters”) and 242 Massachusetts adults who say they did not participate in the election (referred to as “non-voters”). The margin of sampling error for results based on the total sample of voters is plus or minus 4 percentage points and for the total sample of non-voters, it is plus or minus 8 percentage points. Telephone interviews were carried out by Social Science Research Solutions (SSRS).

Representatives of The Washington Post, the Henry J. Kaiser Family Foundation, and Harvard University worked together to develop the survey questionnaire and analyze the results. Each organization bears the sole responsibility for the work that appears under its name.

The project team included Jon Cohen, The Washington Post director of polling and Jennifer Agiesta, polling analyst; Drew E. Altman, president of the Kaiser Family Foundation, Mollyann Brodie, vice president and director of public opinion and survey research, Claudia Deane and Elizabeth Hamel, associate directors of public opinion and survey research, Carolina Gutiérrez, survey analyst, and Sarah Cho, Rosenfield Fellow; and Robert J. Blendon, professor of health policy and political analysis at the Harvard School of Public Health and the John F. Kennedy School of Government, and John M. Benson, managing director of the Harvard Opinion Research Program in the Harvard School of Public Health.

Please note: (1) Table percentages may not add to 100% due to rounding. (2) Values less than 0.5% are indicated by an asterisk (*). (3) “Vol.” indicates that a response was volunteered by the respondent and not an explicitly offered choice. (4) Sampling error is only one of many potential sources of error in this or any other public opinion poll.
