Kaiser Health Tracking Poll: September 2011

September 2011

SLIDE 1

Public Split On Idea Of Super Committee

As you may know, the legislation to raise the federal debt ceiling that was passed by Congress and signed by the president at the end of July calls for the creation of a bipartisan committee, sometimes referred to as the “super committee.” The committee is made up of 12 members of Congress—6 Republicans and 6 Democrats—and must come up with a plan to cut at least $1.2 trillion from the federal budget deficit over the next 10 years. They must make their recommendations to Congress by November 23. If the committee doesn’t reach consensus, or if Congress doesn’t approve their recommendations by December 23, a series of automatic spending cuts would kick in. Do you think creating the bipartisan super committee was a good idea or a bad idea?

Half Of Americans Say Someone In Household Has Pre-Existing Condition

In general, the term “pre-existing condition” is used by insurance companies to describe an illness or medical condition that a person had before they began looking for insurance. For example, if you were looking to buy health insurance but had a history of asthma, diabetes or high blood pressure, those would be considered pre-existing conditions, along with illnesses such as cancer.

Given that definition, would you say that you or someone else in your household would be considered to have a “pre-existing condition” of some sort, or not?

Among the 52% who say they or someone in their household has a pre-existing health condition: Can you briefly describe what that condition is? [open-end]

Note: Only responses of 3 percent or more shown for follow-up question. Percentages may add to more than 100% due to multiple responses.

Methodology

This Kaiser Health Tracking Poll was designed and analyzed by public opinion researchers at the Kaiser Family Foundation led by Mollyann Brodie, Ph.D., including Liz Hamel, Sarah Cho, and Theresa Boston. The survey was conducted September 7 through September 12, 2011, among a nationally representative random sample of 1,207 adults ages 18 and older. Telephone interviews conducted by landline (704) and cell phone (503, including 224 who had no landline telephone) were carried out in English and Spanish by Princeton Survey Research Associates.

The margin of sampling error is plus or minus 3 percentage points. For results based subgroups, the margin of sampling error may be higher. Note that sampling error is only one of many potential sources of error in this or any other public opinion poll.

“VOL” indicates that a response was volunteered by respondent, not an explicitly offered choice.

Due to rounding, percentages may not add to 100.
