

Candice Chen M.D. M.P.H.

Dr. Chen is the Co-Principal Investigator of the Medical Education Futures Study, an Investigator on the Sub-Saharan African Medical Schools Study and an Attending Physician in General Pediatrics at Children's National Medical Center in Washington, D.C. She is an Assistant Professor of Pediatrics and Health Policy at George Washington University. She received her medical degree from Baylor College of Medicine and her Masters of Public Health from George Washington University with a concentration in Community Oriented Primary Care.

In her clinical work, she provides primary care to an underserved population in Southeast, Washington D.C. In her health policy work, she is investigating the role of medical education in developing a socially responsible physician workforce in the United States and the state of medical education in Africa.