The Kaiser Commission on Medicaid and the Uninsured serves as a policy institute and forum for analyzing health care coverage and access for the low-income population and assessing options for reform. The Commission, begun in 1991, strives to bring increased public awareness and expanded analytic effort to the policy debate over health coverage and access, with a special focus on Medicaid and the uninsured. The Commission is a major initiative of The Henry J. Kaiser Family Foundation and is based at the Foundation's Washington, D.C. office.

Introduction

In Arizona, less than half of all persons eligible for the Medicare Savings Programs are enrolled in the programs. But, in recent years, the state has undertaken a number of activities to extend the Medicare Savings Programs and Medicaid to more low-income Arizonans. Arizona has expanded financial eligibility for the Medicare Savings Programs and Medicaid programs, streamlined its Medicare Savings Programs enrollment procedures, and strengthened its partnership with the state aging network and community groups to provide one-on-one advice and assistance to beneficiaries as well as targeted outreach to American Indians. Arizona's work has resulted in impressive increases in participation in the Medicare Savings Programs. Enrollment increased 14.3 percent from September 2000 to 2001.

This case study involved a site visit in Phoenix and Tucson in February 2001 and telephone follow-up to interview officials from the state Medicaid agency, the Arizona State Health Insurance Counseling Program (SHIP), AARP, the Arizona Disability Law Center, the Area Agency on Aging in Tucson (the Pima Council on Aging), and the Arizona Association of Community Health Centers.

The case study begins with an explanation of the Medicaid program and administrative structure of the Medicare Savings Programs program in Arizona. It then describes the state's recent expansion of Medicare Savings Programs and Medicaid financial eligibility as well as efforts to streamline enrollment procedures and conduct outreach to eligible but un-enrolled American Indians. The case study concludes with lessons learned from Arizona's experiences.

Medicaid in Arizona

Arizona's state Medicaid program is known as the Arizona Health Care Cost Containment System (AHCCCS). Since 1982, the program has operated under a Medicaid §1115 Research and Demonstration Waiver. AHCCCS delivers Medicaid acute care services through managed care plans that receive prepaid, capitated payments to provide acute care Medicaid services. Medicaid long-term care services are delivered through an agency within AHCCCS, the Arizona Long Term Care System (ALTCS). All Medicaid beneficiaries must elect to receive services through one of the twelve AHCCCS plans. Eligible American Indians enrolled in AHCCCS can choose to receive acute care services either through the Indian Health Service (IHS) or an AHCCCS health plan that is located off of the reservation.

and older Arizonans in Arizona. First, AHCCCS administers policy and eligibility for the Medicare Savings Programs and acute care Medicaid for Medicare beneficiaries. Until recently, the Arizona Long Term Care System conducted Medicaid eligibility determinations for Medicare beneficiaries, but AHCCCS staff are now transitioning to assume this responsibility. Second, the Arizona State Health Insurance Assistance Program (SHIP), housed within the Arizona State Unit on Aging, the Department of Economic Services Aging and Adult Administration, provides information, counseling, application assistance, and educational workshops about Medicare, Medicaid, Medicare Savings Programs and other health insurance options. In partnership with the state’s Area Agencies on Aging, the SHIP delivers assistance through a statewide toll-free help-line and TTY, SHIP staff and volunteer counselors.

State Outreach and Enrollment Practices

Financial Eligibility Criterion for the Medicare Savings Programs

Until recently, income and asset thresholds for Medicare Savings Programs and Medicaid for the blind, disabled, and aged in Arizona generally mirrored federal minimums. During 2000 and 2001, Arizona substantially liberalized financial eligibility criterion for these programs. As a result, eligibility is now set at the following levels:

Arizona Medicaid & Medicare Savings Programs Financial Eligibility Rules

Full Medicaid Benefits (Aged, Blind, & Disabled)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Income: 100% FPL • Assets: no limit
Full Medicaid Benefits (Medically Needy Spend Down for Aged, Blind, & Disabled, or “Medical Expense Deduction”)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Income: 40% FPL • Assets: May not exceed total of $100,000, and no more than $5,000 can be liquid
Medicare Savings Programs	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Income: Federal standards + $20 disregard • Assets: no limit • Estate Recovery: Included in state Medicaid plan, but not implemented

Increase in Medicaid Income Threshold

In November 2000, Arizona voters approved Proposition 204, a measure that increased the income threshold for full acute care Medicaid to 100 percent of the federal poverty level (FPL), or about $736 per month in 2002, for individuals whose Medicaid eligibility is categorically linked to Medicaid, such as aged, blind, and disabled persons, as well as children and families. The measure also extended Medicaid up to 100 FPL for persons whose eligibility is not categorically linked to Medicaid, such as single adults and families without children. To cover costs associated with the expansion, Proposition 204 allocated revenues from the state’s share of settlement funds from a national class action against five large tobacco companies in 1998.

The approval of Proposition 204 represented a triumph for grass roots advocacy groups in Arizona as well as the will of Arizona voters. In 1996, Arizonans had voted for a similar measure that would have used tobacco tax revenues to expand the Medicaid program. Yet, the state Legislature failed to pass a law to implement the initiative. The Legislature later enacted legislation to ensure that propositions approved by the Arizona voters become law. In 2000, a coalition of diverse advocacy groups, led by AARP, worked to put Proposition 204 on the ballot and to garner the support of the majority of Arizona supporters through the extensive use of the media and advertisements. Their efforts led to voters approving Proposition 204 in the 2000 general election. Legislation implementing Proposition 204 was enacted in 2001.

During winter 2001, the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) approved a state Medicaid Plan Amendment and granted a Medicaid Waiver for Arizona to implement Proposition 204.⁸ The Medicaid expansion became effective on October 1, 2001, but the state began enrolling individuals under the new standards as of March 2001.

Removal of Asset Test for Medicare Savings Programs and Medicaid

In addition, Arizona amended its state Medicaid plan to drop the asset test for the Medicare Savings Programs and full acute care Medicaid for the aged, blind and disabled Medicaid category. In 2000, before Proposition 204's approval, a team of AHCCCS policy personnel studying eligibility simplification issues had recommended to state officials that the asset test be eliminated for the Medicare Savings Programs. The recommendation was based on a study that involved analysis of Medicare Savings Programs application denials because of excess resources. AHCCCS personnel made the following observations:

- Annually, less than 100 applicants were denied based on resources alone, and, in most of these cases, the amount of the extra resources was relatively modest and could be quickly spent to allow persons to meet asset level requirements. Accordingly, eliminating the asset test would allow needy low-income seniors who resisted spending their small savings to obtain the Medicare Savings Programs benefit.
- Removing the asset test would streamline the application and enrollment process for the Medicaid agency and enhance administrative efficiency by reducing the staff time needed to process applications. The cost of providing benefits to additional persons found eligible for the program would be comparable to the administrative expenditures related to verifying resources.
- Eliminating the asset test would encourage more persons to apply for the Medicare Savings Programs, especially the SLMB and QI benefits, which are limited to Part B premium payments. Given that Medicare Savings Programs provides less than full Medicaid coverage, eligible persons may feel the benefit is not worth the effort entailed to gather multiple resource verifications needed to apply.

⁸ CMS approved both a waiver and State Medicaid plan amendment for the proposition 204 changes. The state plan amendment was used to expand eligibility for the categorically eligibility groups, and a waiver was needed to expand the eligibility for non-categorically linked individuals.

- Dropping the asset test would make the application process more user-friendly for seniors and persons with disabilities who face barriers in gathering the information.

Once Proposition 204 was put forth, AHCCCS policy makers conducted a similar study on removing the asset test for other categorically linked eligibility groups, including the aged, blind, and disabled categories. When the study yielded similar findings, state officials eliminated the asset test for these programs as well. Thus, in Arizona, financial eligibility for both the Medicare Savings Programs and full acute care Medicaid benefits is premised on income, but not resources.

Effect of Medicare Savings Programs and Medicaid Eligibility Expansion

Arizona began phasing in the Medicaid financial eligibility expansion for the Medicare Savings Programs and Medicaid in March 2001, in conjunction with simplified enrollment procedures and intensive outreach efforts to promote increased enrollment. The simplification and outreach efforts are covered later in this report.

The Medicare Savings Programs and Medicaid eligibility expansions helped to extend the Medicare Savings Programs benefits to many more Arizonans. According to CMS figures, from September 2000 to September 2001, Medicare Savings Programs enrollment in Arizona increased from 58,646 to 67,040, a gain of 8,394 or 14.3 percent. State officials believe that much of this increase resulted from the full Medicaid eligibility expansion, which generated many new Medicaid applications and a concomitant increase in Medicare Savings Programs enrollment. Persons found ineligible for full Medicaid may qualify for one of the Medicare Savings Programs benefits. Additionally, the cumulative outcome of the eligibility liberalizations helped to make most QMB-eligible persons also qualify for full Medicaid benefits, which include prescription drugs and other non-Medicare-covered services.⁹ These benefits likely encouraged more persons to apply for assistance. Most QMB-eligibles have opted to receive full Medicaid benefits in addition to the QMB benefit. In January 2000, there were 7,203 persons receiving QMB alone; as of September 2001, all but 885 persons had opted to also receive full Medicaid benefits.

Estate Recovery

Arizona currently only conducts estate recovery for nursing facility and long-term care Medicaid benefits provided to persons age 55 and older.¹⁰ The state does not recover medical payments from the estates of deceased Medicaid enrollees who did not receive long-term care. One

⁹ Some QMBs, generally those who are working, may not qualify for Medicaid. While a portion of earned income must be disregarded in counting income for the MSP, the disregard for earned income does not apply when calculating income for Arizona's Medicaid benefit.

¹⁰ Arizona's state Medicaid plan actually permits estate recovery for Medicaid funds expended for MSP benefits and acute care Medicaid for persons 55 and over, but the state has never affirmatively adopted or implemented a policy to effectuate this. Because Arizona has never performed estate recovery for MSP and acute care Medicaid, and state officials did not foresee revising this position in the future, SHIP and Medicaid representatives generally advise beneficiaries that estate recovery does not apply to MSP and acute care Medicaid.

official said the policy made sense because, particularly for the Medicare Savings Programs, the amounts involved would not make it “cost-effective” for the state to recover its expenditures.

Although Arizona does not, in fact, conduct estate recovery for payments for the Medicare Savings Programs and acute care Medicaid for beneficiaries who do not use Medicaid long-term care services, aging advocates reported that widespread misconceptions about estate recovery represent a significant barrier to increasing enrollment in the Medicare Savings Programs and Medicaid. Many individuals know that estate recovery applies to long-term care benefits and thus assume that other forms of Medicaid, namely the Medicare Savings Programs and acute care services in Medicaid, will work the same way. In the past, confusion about estate recovery was exacerbated because the state used a single application form for both acute care and long-term care Medicaid benefits, and this application referred to Arizona’s estate recovery program.

SHIP and Area Agency on Aging officials indicated that education could be helpful in dispelling estate recovery fears and encouraging persons to apply for Medicare Savings Programs and Medicaid acute care benefits. Because misunderstanding of Arizona’s estate recovery practice seems extremely prevalent, some advocates reported that an extensive re-education campaign would be required.

Simplification and Facilitation of the Application Process

In the past few years, Arizona has simplified the application process by revising the application form for the Medicare Savings Programs, first shortening the application and subsequently revising it twice. The state has also sought to facilitate enrollment by addressing computer systems problems and training eligibility workers.

Application Forms

Traditionally, individuals needed to apply for Medicare Savings Programs using the long-term care Medicaid application, which was over 12 pages long, required substantial documentation, and entailed a face-to-face interview at the Arizona Long Term Care System (ALTCS) office. In 1998, Arizona began a process of streamlining Medicare Savings Programs application procedures and devised a separate, shortened application form for the Medicare Savings Programs. This section discusses the initial short form application and its revision over time.

Initial Short Medicare Savings Programs Application

Arizona instituted a shortened Medicare Savings Programs application form in 1998 to help promote enrollment in the Medicare Savings Programs, which ranked low nationally. The Medicaid agency developed the form in close consultation with the state SHIP, which had sought the change.

The entire form was four pages (two double-sided pages), including one instruction page, one Rights and Responsibilities page, and a two-page (double-sided) application form. The form required the following verifications:

- Resource verifications, such as the most recent statements regarding life insurance and burial policies, financial accounts, and tax assessments;
- Income verifications, such as check stubs, award letters, and the most recent income tax forms;
- Proof of immigration status; and
- Copies of any health insurance cards.

The form could be submitted by mail or in-person at a local long-term care system office. After individuals submitted their completed short form to the local office, eligibility workers generally required applicants to participate in an in-person interview before approving an award of benefits. Over time, many local long-term care offices began phasing out personal interviews and began contacting the client by telephone when the worker had questions.

Advocates viewed the short Medicare Savings Programs application as a substantial improvement over the traditional Medicaid application. The form was less intimidating and not as difficult to complete for most individuals. Additionally, the instruction page included clear directions about completing the application and helpful charts comparing the monthly income limits, specific eligibility requirements, and benefits for each of the Medicare Savings Programs. Advocates were also pleased when the in-person interview requirement was waived because many individuals, especially those in rural areas, found it inconvenient to travel to the Medicaid office to apply for benefits. .

The form elicited the following criticisms, however:

- The Medicare Savings Programs comparison chart on the instruction page included the monthly income limits before the $20 income disregard was added;
- The application needed larger print and more “white space” to enhance readability;
- The form was only available in English, and the form did not include the Medicaid ADA Coordinator’s toll-free number to call for an alternate formats or translation service;
- Documentation requirements, especially those related to resources, were formidable for many persons and deterred eligible persons from applying for benefits.

Revised Medicare Savings Programs Application Form

In April 2001, to reflect the new Medicaid and Medicare Savings Programs financial eligibility criterion, AHCCCS revised the short form to include both Medicare Savings Programs and full acute care AHCCCS benefits. Advocates commended new aspects of the application form, including that it:

- Collects information regarding ethnicity and race to enable the state to measure participation rates of minority populations;
- Eliminates the need for verification of assets and only requires documentation of income;
- Removes the requirement for an in person interview at the ALTCS office;
- Mentions that income limits do not include the $20 income disregard or other allowed deductions;
- Includes more “white space” and a larger font type face;
- Is available in Spanish and English versions, which can both be downloaded from the

- Medicare Savings Programs page on the AHCCCS website; and
- Contains contact information and locations for AHCCCS health plans and long term care system offices.

Universal Medicaid Application Form

In 2001, the state also began phasing in a Medicaid application form that could be used for all forms of acute care Medicaid, including the Medicare Savings Programs and Medicaid for children and families. The universal form facilitated enrollment for all household members on one form, eliminating the need for family members to submit separate applications. Ultimately, the state planned to eliminate all separate Medicaid forms and to rely solely on the universal form. Additionally, the state was in the process of coordinating efforts with a community-based organization to allow for applications to be submitted via the Internet.

In 2001, the universal application form was disseminated for piloting to various community-based organizations throughout the state. In general, the community-based organizations viewed the universal application form favorably, believing it made the enrollment process easier and less time-consuming for clients and outreach workers. Although the form was somewhat longer and contained smaller print than the separate Medicare Savings Programs form, organizations remarked that obviating the need for separate Medicaid application forms makes their job easier and made it more likely that all family members would apply for benefits. In any event, many older persons needed personal assistance to complete the application form, which outreach workers were trained to provide. Although the SHIP has not used the universal form yet, it is also supportive of the universal application form because the agency serves many multi-generational families and grandparents raising grandchildren.

At the time of the case study, the universal form was being submitted to a centralized Medicaid screening unit that performed “triage,” reviewing all Medicaid applications and routing copies of them to different processing units for eligibility determinations depending on what programs were involved. Medicaid officials explained that all applications received for Medicare-eligible persons were sent to a special processing unit within AHCCCS. In addition, AHCCCS had set up a help-line for persons to call to obtain feedback about the status of their applications.

Training and Knowledge of Eligibility Workers

AHCCCS reported that all new Arizona long-term care system eligibility workers receive a preliminary two-month training course, including classroom instruction and “on-the-job training,” with follow-up training later in the year. Additionally, all workers receive training at least one time per year.

Advocates interviewed were generally complimentary of the local offices’ processing of Medicare Savings Programs and AHCCCS applications. Although some advocates noted incidences where ALTCS receptionists in rural areas turned away eligible clients, advocates stated that eligibility workers were mostly knowledgeable about Medicare Savings Programs and that, in contrast to the Department of Economic Services (Arizona’s public assistance agency), the long-term care offices were attuned to the needs of older clients and did not carry the connotations about welfare.

At the time of the case study, application processing for Medicare Savings Programs and Medicaid full benefits for Medicare beneficiaries was being transferred to AHCCCS personnel. Due to its new partnership and recent interactions with AHCCCS staff, as described below, the SHIP expected the AHCCCS eligibility workers to be knowledgeable about the programs and responsive to clients.

Computer Issues

Although Arizona's Medicaid computer database has experienced problems in the past, parties interviewed believed that most system problems have been resolved with upgrades to the database. In addition, when electronic information from the Social Security Administration reflected that a person has been terminated from SSI, Medicaid workers received an alert to consider the individual's eligibility for other Medicaid categories before terminating them from AHCCCS.

Redeterminations/Renewals

Yearly renewals for Medicare Savings Programs are made using the Medicare Savings Programs and AHCCCS short-form. Beneficiaries are required to submit income verifications, but they are not required to participate in an in-person interview at the ALTCS office. On American Indian reservations, SHIP counselors at the senior centers often helped elders with the process. Advocates believed that in most cases, persons completed the process and maintained their coverage. The SHIP reported that terminations from the Medicare Savings Programs occurred from time to time, particularly when persons did not receive the notice because they had moved and had not yet provided a change of address to AHCCCS.

Outreach and Partnerships

This section discusses Arizona's collaborative efforts to conduct outreach and provide application assistance to persons who may qualify for Medicare Savings Programs and full Medicaid benefits.

Collaboration Between the SHIP and Medicaid Agencies

SHIP officials indicated that, over the years, collaboration between the SHIP and AHCCCS on Medicare Savings Programs enrollment has been minimal. Until the eligibility changes in 2001, the Medicaid agency's outreach to Medicare beneficiaries was quite limited, and the SHIP shouldered most of the responsibility for Medicare Savings Programs outreach in Arizona. However, when Medicaid eligibility was expanded, AHCCCS took a more active role in outreach for the Medicare Savings Programs and partnered with the SHIP to enroll eligible individuals.

Since 1995, the Arizona SHIP has provided Medicare Savings Programs information and application assistance. SHIP counselors screen all callers for Medicare Savings Programs eligibility, and the SHIP director and staff conduct numerous Medicare presentations that include information on Medicare Savings Programs. Volunteer counselors attend the presentations to assist audience members with completing application forms. In addition, about 10 percent of SHIP counselors speak Spanish and provide assistance to applicants with limited English proficiency. Most bilingual counselors provide assistance in areas such as Santa Cruz County, which is located near the Mexico border and has an extremely high percentage of citizens who are native Spanish speakers.

With the passage of Proposition 204, the Medicaid agency initiated a one million dollar campaign to publicize the eligibility expansions and enroll individuals. As part of its efforts, it increased its outreach efforts to Medicare beneficiaries and substantially strengthened its partnership with the SHIPs. AHCCCS provided training to SHIP counselors about the new, combined Medicare Savings Programs and AHCCCS application forms and appointed a SHIP liaison to trouble shoot issues, provide information on the status of applications and expedite application processing.

The Medicaid agency also sought input from the SHIP Coordinator on how to inform QMBs about the new eligibility limits for full Medicaid benefits and enroll those who wished to receive these benefits. In February, AHCCCS mailed two notices, which the SHIP Coordinator helped to draft, to all of the QMBs in the state (about 8,000 individuals). The first notified the recipients: (1) of their ability to enroll in an AHCCCS plan and receive additional benefits, such as prescription drugs and transportation; (2) that they would automatically be enrolled in a Medicaid plan effective April 1, 2001, unless they called the Medicaid agency to decline such coverage; and (3) that they would be receiving a packet shortly containing information for them to chose a plan in their region. The follow-up mailing contained information about the available health plans, including contact numbers for information on participating providers. The letters stated that the Medicaid agency would assign them to health plan unless they selected a plan by March 27, 2001.

Following the mailings, SHIP and Medicaid officials handled several calls for assistance to explain the new options and assist beneficiaries in navigating their health plan choices. SHIP officials report that AHCCCS worked well with SHIP counselors to accommodate the special needs of beneficiaries and to resolve problems quickly, erring in favor of beneficiaries. For example, a number of persons, especially those who were ill or in the hospital during February and March, failed to select a health plan by the deadline and were assigned to Medicaid plans that were unsuitable for their health care needs (i.e., the local dialysis facility or hospital was not part of the plan network). In these cases, the Medicaid agency allowed plan changes after the deadline.

SHIP staff also reported that many Medicare beneficiaries required one-on-one assistance to complete the application process. According to SHIP officials, the task of selecting a health plan has proven to be a daunting and complex task for many beneficiaries, many of whom may not be accustomed to using managed care. Most beneficiaries have required personalized assistance to review and compare health plan options and to select a plan that includes a provider network appropriate for their individual health care needs. Counseling is especially important for QMBs enrolled in Medicare HMOs, as such individuals need to ensure that their primary care physician participates in both their Medicare and AHCCCS health plans to in order to coordinate their health care.

As mentioned earlier, most QMBs in Arizona chose to receive full Medicaid benefits in addition to their assistance with Medicare cost sharing. As of September 2001, only 885 people remained in QMB without full acute care AHCCCS. SHIP officials believed that most of these individuals did not enroll in an AHCCCS plan because they did not want to change providers, did not want to receive Medicaid or managed care, or did not qualify for full Medicaid benefits because they were working.

State Grants for Community-Based Outreach

In April 2001, after the voter's approval of Proposition 204, Arizona awarded one million dollars in outreach funds to seven community-based organizations, including the Arizona Association of Community Health Centers, which provides advocacy and supportive services for the state's non-profit, tribal and public primary care health centers.¹¹ In the last decade, Arizona has become an increasingly diverse state. In 2000, 1,295,617 residents, about 25 percent of the state's population, indicated Hispanic origins. Additionally, in the United States, Arizona has the third largest concentration of American Indians, with American Indians comprising 5 percent of the state's total population.¹² Arizona's Medicaid outreach grants reflected the state's view that partnering with community based organizations and providers could help enroll underserved populations into Medicaid. The staff of community based organizations and health clinics often are racially and ethnically diverse, attuned to the cultural norms of target populations, and fluent in Spanish and tribal languages. The state believed that community based organizations and providers were best equipped to know where and how to reach un-enrolled persons and to develop culture- and language-appropriate strategies to enroll them in Medicaid programs.

The community groups and providers were charged with conducting outreach and initial application processing to promote enrollment in AHCCCS, the Medicare Savings Programs, and KidsCare (the Arizona SCHIP program). Although the grantees' traditional patient base tended to be families and children, the state funding enabled the community groups and providers to build their capacity to serve the needs of older Arizonans. For example, Arizona health centers have traditionally provided care to family and children. About six percent of the patient mix is 65 and over, and Medicare represents about five percent of payments for medical services. Funding from the state enabled health centers to hire new outreach workers and build their capacity to provide Medicare Savings Programs information and assistance to many elderly and disabled community members and existing patients. Health centers telephoned their existing Medicare-eligible patients to advise them about the Medicaid eligibility changes and providing personalized application assistance to older Arizonans at community events. Like the SHIPs, the health centers indicated that the older residents generally required intensive assistance and one-on-one contact to complete the Medicare Savings Programs and AHCCCS application process.

¹¹ Proposition 204 also directed the Arizona Department of Economic Services to place sufficient eligibility workers at health centers and hospitals. At the time of the case study, the Department's plans for implementing this requirement were unfolding.

¹² U.S. Census Bureau, Census 2000.

According to the Arizona Association of Community Health Centers, health centers welcomed the opportunity to conduct Medicaid outreach to their patients. Health centers charge persons based on sliding scale fee and benefit financially when patients have Medicare and/or Medicaid coverage. In particular, health centers were glad to build their capacity to reach out to older persons because they wish to cultivate an older clientele given the growing numbers of older Arizonans. Although they treat few older patients, many health centers have regular contact with older persons, who often live with extended families and accompany their younger family members to appointments. Health centers believed that helping the older generation with Medicaid enrollment would strengthen their relationship with extended families and help to establish their reputation as multi-generational providers.

Other State Promotional Efforts Related to Proposition 204

As part of its efforts to enroll more persons in Medicaid, the state planned a massive education and media initiative to publicize the Medicaid expansions, including those related to the Medicare Savings Programs and Medicaid for the older persons and individuals with disabilities. At the time of the case study, many of these initiatives were still in initial stages. Notable activities included:

- AHCCCS planned to air bilingual 60-second paid public service announcements targeting seniors on four radio stations throughout the state;
- Medicare Savings Programs advertisements were to appear in Spanish and English language newspapers;
- Posters geared to the Medicare eligible population were displayed in shopping malls commonly frequented by seniors;
- AHCCCS planned to develop Medicare Savings Programs posters for distribution by community-based organizations and two large grocery chains state-wide;
- AHCCCS was developing Medicare Savings Programs brochures geared to eligible persons as well as a brochure for advocates;
- The state was updating its Medicaid website to make information about the Medicare Savings Programs more prominent; and
- Medicaid officials were participating in health fairs and making community presentations to provide Medicare Savings Programs information and personalized application assistance.

SHIP Collaboration with the Social Security Administration

In January 2001, the federal Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) awarded the Arizona SHIP a one-year, $40,000 grant to place volunteer SHIP counselors in local Social Security Administration (SSA) offices to provide information and application assistance for the Medicare Savings Programs.

Though the project was ongoing at the time of the case study, interviewees shared preliminary insights about the initiative. The SHIP director observed that project worked best when SHIP counselors were placed in SSA offices that had already established ties with SHIP staff in order to streamline and facilitate agreements and logistics. In addition, she explained that the SHIP had initially planned to outstation regular employees in the SSA office part-time, but did not because the parties had difficulty determining the means for supervising the employees. Instead, SHIP volunteers were placed in the offices. However, since the volunteers' hours were irregular, some SSA workers never acquired the habit of referring clients to them for Medicare Savings Programs application assistance. Additionally, many volunteers said that even when SSA workers were attuned to their presence, there seemed to be a low volume of persons requiring Medicare Savings Programs assistance. Based on the preliminary results from the project, the SHIP director was skeptical about the benefit of placing a SHIP representative at Social Security offices to provide Medicare Savings Programs information and application assistance. Instead, the official believed that the means of collaboration would be best if the local offices could routinely disseminate SHIP brochures to clients so the SHIPs could guide them through the process.

Outreach to the American Indian Population

Four Corners Public Benefit Outreach

In 2000, AARP funded the Four Corners Public Benefit Outreach initiative on the Navajo and Hopi reservations in Arizona. The aim of the initiative was to help tribal elders learn about and enroll in public benefits programs, including Medicare Savings Programs, SSI, Food stamps, and utility assistance. The outreach was modeled after a similar AARP initiative with the Navajo Nation and the Pueblo and Apache tribes in New Mexico.

AARP's outreach project involved partnerships with agencies such as the SHIP, the Medicaid agency, and the Social Security Administration, as well as entities already serving tribal elders, such as the Indian Health Service (IHS), the Navajo Area Agency on Aging, and the Intertribal Council of Arizona Area on Aging, which represents 20 Arizona tribal governments, including that of the Hopi tribe.¹³

Tribal Area on Aging and SHIP staff helped AARP to: (1) secure proper authorizations from tribal leaders to conduct outreach; (2) design culturally-appropriate outreach techniques; and (3) recruit and train a core of 22 tribal employees and elders to conduct outreach. At special training events, officials from the SHIP, Medicaid agency, the Social Security Administration and the Indian Health Service instructed tribal outreach workers about the various public benefit programs and completing applications for assistance. The training encouraged an unusual collaboration between the Navajo and Hopi tribes that contrasted historic discord and competition between the groups.

The trained outreach core conducted door-to-door outreach to tribal elders on the reservations in spring 2000. Generally, a team of three or four outreach workers would travel to an elder's home and converse with the elder in their tribal tongue about the public benefit programs. The teams included at least one member who knew the elder and led the discussions and introductions. The counselors screened the elders for Medicare Savings Programs, and if they seemed eligible, helped them to complete an application and collect any necessary documentation. The interview generally lasted between one to two hours. During fall 2000, the counselors conducted follow-up interviews with the tribal elders to help resolve difficulties or barriers experienced. Parties participating in the initiative judged it an overall success, as it led to approximately 600 benefit awards for tribal elders over a five-month period.

Although AARP's public benefits outreach to American Indian tribes ended in 2000, the Intertribal Council of Arizona Area Agency on Aging began a Tribal Public Benefits outreach program similar to the Four Corners model, using SHIP and Older Americans Act funds. In 2001, the public benefits outreach project provided outreach and enrollment assistance to tribal elders from the: Fort McDowell Reservation, Gila River Indian Community, Pascua Yaqui Tribe, White Mountain Apache Tribe, Tonton O'dhom, Yavapi Apache, and Hopi tribes. The SHIP, an American Indian coordinator from the Medicaid agency, and other government officials have continued to provide instruction and updates to tribal outreach counselors at special training events. Additionally, SHIP counselors who are located at senior centers on reservations help conduct any necessary follow-up with the elders regarding their application, including the yearly redeterminations to help elders maintain their enrollment.

Results of Medicare Savings Programs outreach to American Indian Elders

Partners in the Four Corners and Public Benefits Outreach initiatives made important observations about conducting outreach to American Indian elders, commenting that they learned that:

- It is essential for government agencies to observe tribal protocols and obtain advance permission from tribal leaders before conducting outreach.
- Effective outreach to American Indian elders enlists the support of respected tribal members and elders and utilizes existing tribal social service network employees, including tribal senior center staff, SHIP counselors, and Indian Health Service community health representatives. Trusted providers and persons can help dispel misgivings about applying for government programs and reluctance to reveal personal financial information to others.
- Illiteracy and lack of English proficiency is prevalent among American Indian elders. Successful outreach involves face-to-face counseling using simple terms and the elder's native language. Outreach workers who lack fluency in the native tongue can bring a tribal member along to translate, which will also help gain the trust of the elder.
- Traditional modes of communication with urban elders are challenging because many lack phones, do not have direct mail delivery, and live in remote rural areas several miles from paved roads. Tribal staff and SHIP counselors at senior centers can be used to help direct important communications to elders and to facilitate redeterminations to ensure that elders are retained in public benefit programs.
- Outreach messages should emphasize how receipt of Medicare and Medicaid will facilitate greater access to more comprehensive health care for the elder and for the tribe as a whole. Because Indian Health Services monies are fixed, tribes are forced to ration care. Medicare and Medicaid funds help to augment existing health care resources for the tribe and permit elders to obtain access to benefits that the Indian Health Service may or may not cover, such as prescription drugs or long-term care.

Lessons Learned from Arizona

- Raising the Medicaid income limit can help produce a concomitant increase in Medicare Savings Programs enrollment. Arizona increased the Medicaid income level to the federal poverty level effective April 2001, making most QMBs eligible for full Medicaid benefits. The full Medicaid benefit, which includes prescription drugs and other non-Medicare-covered services, likely encouraged more persons to apply for assistance. Additionally, many applicants found ineligible for Medicaid and QMB qualified for the SLMB, QI-1 or QI-2 benefits.
- Eliminating the asset test helps the Medicare Savings Programs reach those in need, can be relatively cost-neutral, and promotes administrative simplicity for states. Arizona eliminated the asset test after conducting a fiscal impact study finding that the change would (1) allow a small number of needy low-income seniors who resisted spending their small savings to obtain the Medicare Savings Programs benefit; (2) yield savings on administrative expenditures related to documenting assets that were roughly equivalent to the costs of additional persons qualifying for benefits; and (3) enable and encourage more persons to apply for the benefit because the effort of gathering required documentation may discourage or impede many persons from applying for benefits.
- Aligning the eligibility requirements for full Medicaid and QMB provides QMBs with more comprehensive coverage and simplifies enrollment procedures for the Medicare Savings Programs, as well for full Medicaid. Increasing the income limit for Medicaid and eliminating the asset test for Medicaid and the Medicare Savings Programs helped most QMB-eligible persons also qualify for full Medicaid benefits, which includes prescription drugs and other non-Medicare-covered services. The changes also allowed the state to eliminate burdensome asset documentation requirements for the Medicare Savings Programs application. Finally, exempting the Medicare Savings Programs and acute care Medicaid from estate recovery allowed persons to apply for full Medicaid benefits on the same simplified form developed for the Medicare Savings Programs.
- Beneficiaries may be more willing to participate in the Medicare Savings Programs when states do not apply estate recovery to these benefits, but education is needed to dispel fears and misunderstanding about the state's policy. Arizona does not conduct estate recovery for the Medicare Savings Programs or acute care Medicaid. Nevertheless, many individuals know that estate recovery applies to other types of Medicaid, such as long-term care benefits, and thus assume that the Medicare Savings Programs and Medicaid work the same way. SHIP and Area Agency on Aging officials indicated that education can be helpful in dispelling estate recovery fears and in encouraging persons to apply for Medicare Savings Programs and Medicaid acute care benefits.

- Shortened application forms may still need further refinement and testing to make them more user-friendly. Since implementing its shortened Medicare Savings Programs application form in 1998, Arizona has continued to revise the form and made the process of applying more user-friendly over time. For example, Arizona ultimately eliminated the need for an in-person interview at the local long term care office, which can be inaccessible for elders who live far from the offices; enhanced the form's readability by including more white space and larger font, translated the application form into Spanish, and posted the English and Spanish versions of the application on the Medicaid website for downloading.
- Many Medicare Savings Programs applicants need personalize help to complete the application process. In Arizona, the need for help has been heightened since Medicaid eligibility expansions have enabled most persons who qualify for QMB to also enroll in a Medicaid health plan. According to SHIP officials, the task of selecting a health plan has proven to be a daunting and complex task for beneficiaries, many of whom may not be accustomed to using managed care and comparing health plan choices, to select a plan appropriate for their individual health care needs.
- Universal Medicaid applications can be useful in enabling extended families to apply for Medicaid using one form. In 2001, Arizona began phasing in a universal Medicaid application form that could be used for all forms of acute care Medicaid, including the Medicare Savings Programs and Medicaid for children and families. The universal form facilitated enrollment for all household members on one form, eliminating the need for family members to submit separate applications and simplifying the job of outreach workers. Although the universal form was somewhat longer and more difficult to navigate than the Medicare Savings Programs application form, community groups were supportive of the concept because they enabled outreach workers to serve multi-generational families and grandparents raising grandchildren. The density of the universal form did not seem to concern officials because beneficiaries were generally already receiving personalized assistance to complete the simplified Medicare Savings Programs form.
- Streamlining the renewal procedures may aid in the retention of Medicare Savings Programs beneficiaries. In Arizona, beneficiaries were required to complete application forms and submit income documentation for yearly renewal of benefits. Advocates believed that in most cases, persons completed the process. However they reported that terminations occurred from time to time when persons failed to respond to renewal letters, demonstrating that simplifying the renewal process could promote retention in the programs.
- Collaboration between the State Health Insurance Counseling Program and the Medicaid agency can be mutually beneficial and promotes Medicare Savings Programs participation. Since the recent Medicaid expansion, the Medicaid agency increased its outreach efforts to Medicare beneficiaries and substantially strengthened its partnership with the SHIPs, which have traditionally shouldered most of the responsibility for Medicare Savings Programs outreach and application assistance in the state. The Medicaid agency has enhanced the capacity of SHIPs to serve beneficiaries by supplying training about the enrollment procedures. In turn, SHIPs helped the Medicaid agency navigate the complicated task of notifying QMBs about the expanded eligibility for Medicaid and counseling eligible persons about enrolling in a suitable Medicaid health plan.

- Active involvement by community groups and providers can help reach under-served populations. To enroll underserved populations into Medicaid, Arizona’s used Medicaid outreach grants to community-based organizations and providers. The state believed that community-based organizations and providers were best equipped to know where and how to reach un-enrolled individuals and to develop culture- and language-appropriate strategies to enroll them in Medicaid programs.
- Community health centers are a promising venue for Medicare Savings Programs outreach. Although Arizona health centers have traditionally focused on serving children and families, the health centers present a promising venue for Medicare Savings Programs outreach. Health centers come into contact with Medicare Savings Programs eligibles through their extended families and have a financial incentive to establish their reputation as a multi-generational provider and build their capacity to accommodate the needs of the aging population.
- Effective outreach to under-served populations requires recognition of the cultural norms and experiences of the target population. For example, in Arizona, state agencies obtained advance permission and support from tribal leaders and respected elders before conducting outreach. Additionally, state agencies teamed with tribal health care workers and professionals in order to dispel elders’ misgivings about applying for government programs and provide face-to-face counseling using simple terms and the elder’s native language. Finally, outreach messages emphasized how receipt of Medicare and Medicaid would stretch limited health care dollars for the tribe and improve access to health care for elders.

You must apply for pension, disability or retirement benefits if potentially available to you. If you are under age 65 and not receiving Social Security Disability income, a disability determination will be part of your application process.

How Can I Qualify for Medicare Cost Sharing Programs?

If you are receiving or eligible for Medicare Part A and you are receiving or eligible for Medicare Part B, use this application to apply for help with your Medicare premium(s), copayments and deductibles.

There are four Medicare Cost Sharing programs. Each one has a different income limit and different benefits.

If you are a Qualified Disabled Working Individual (QDWI) who is under age 65 and who lost Title II Social Security Disability benefits because of earnings, use this application to apply for payment of your Medicare Part A premium.

If you are eligible for AHCCCS Medical Services, you will be enrolled with an AHCCCS health plan.

A health plan is like a health maintenance organization (HMO). The health plan contracts with the health care providers (doctors, hospitals, pharmacies, etc.) to provide all AHCCCS covered services. You can choose your Primary Care Physician, a doctor who will need to be your first contact for non-emergency medical care and will be responsible for authorizing your non-emergency medical services.

Can I choose my AHCCCS health plan?

Yes. A list of health plans is on page 6. Find the health plans that are available in the county where you live. There are at least two in each county. Discuss the AHCCCS program with your doctor, and find out which plans he or she participates in. Call the plan directly if you want more information. You can review informational material about the health plans at the ALTCS eligibility office. Then make your choice. (If your application is approved and you were enrolled in an AHCCCS health plan within the past 90 days, you will be re-enrolled with that plan if it is available).

Will I need to change doctors?

Possibly, however most doctors in Arizona participate in AHCCCS and contract with AHCCCS health plans. Ask your current doctor which AHCCCS health plan he or she contracts with.

I am in a Medicare HMO. How will enrolling in an AHCCCS health plan affect me?

If your Medicare HMO doctor also participates with the AHCCCS health plan you choose, you will receive the full AHCCCS benefits available. However, if your doctor in the Medicare HMO does not participate in the AHCCCS health plan you choose, to receive the full benefits available, the Medicare HMO doctor must contact the AHCCCS health plan to coordinate care. If approved prescriptions are filled at a pharmacy that participates in the AHCCCS health plan, there are no prescription co-pays and there is no annual limit on prescription costs.

Can I apply for both AHCCCS Medical Services and Medicare Cost Services programs?

Yes. If eligible, you can get AHCCCS Medical Services and Qualified Medicare Beneficiary (QMB) benefits at the same time.

Who Can Complete an Application?

This application may be completed by you or anyone you choose who knows or can get the information needed to complete the application for you and your family members. The terms “applicant” and “you” on this form refer to the person applying for AHCCCS Medical Services and/or Medicare Cost Sharing benefits. You and your spouse can use the same application form to apply. If you have a conservator or guardian, your conservator or guardian must complete this form for you.

If your application is approved for AHCCCS Medical Services, you will be enrolled in the health plan you chose. (If you were enrolled in an AHCCCS health plan within the past 90 days, you will be re-enrolled with that plan if it is available).

If you are approved for AHCCCS Medical Services and you have not chosen a health plan, you will be assigned to one. You will receive an AHCCCS ID card with the name and telephone number of the health plan.

If your application is not approved for AHCCCS Medical Services but you are approved for one of the Medicare Cost Sharing programs, you will not be enrolled with a health plan.

Explanation of your rights and responsibilities

This section explains your rights. Please read it carefully.

Citizenship and Immigration Status

Anyone who wants AHCCCS Health Insurance (except for emergency medical care) must tell us his or her citizenship or immigration status. Non-citizens must provide copies of any INS cards or letters. We may verify immigration documents with the INS, but we will not report information to the INS. If you ask for or receive AHCCCS Health Insurance (except for nursing home care), it will not hurt the immigration status of anyone in your household. You do not need to tell us about the citizenship, immigration status or place of birth, or provide documents for anyone in your household who is not applying for AHCCCS Health Insurance.

Providing Social Security Numbers

Anyone who asks for AHCCCS Health Insurance must tell us his or her Social Security number or apply for one. If you do not have a Social Security number, we can help you apply for one. We do not require a Social Security number for a person who is not asking for AHCCCS Health Insurance, but you may give it voluntarily. Providing all Social Security numbers will help us process the application faster. We use Social Security numbers for computer matching with other state and federal agencies and to find out about your income and whether you have Medicare. It also makes sure you are not approved for AHCCCS Health Insurance more than once at the same time. Immigrants who are not legally able to obtain a Social Security number are not required to provide one. We will not use your Social Security number as your AHCCCS identification number.

Hearing Rights

You have the right to ask for a hearing if:

- you have given all information and proof requested and you have not been told in writing within 45 days (or 90 days if a disability determination is needed) whether your application is approved or denied,
- we deny your application, or stop or reduce your services, or
- you disagree with the amount of your premium or an increase in your premium.

The notice AHCCCS or DES sends you will tell you how to request a hearing, the date by which you must ask for a hearing, and will ask for the reason you want a hearing.

Privacy Rights

AHCCCS or DES staff will not tell anyone what you tell us in this application unless you give us permission or we are allowed to by State and Federal law.

Penalty Warning

Federal, State and local officials may check the truth of the information you provide on this application. You must not knowingly hold back or give false information so you can receive or continue receiving AHCCCS Health Insurance. If something you tell us on this application is incorrect, we may deny or stop AHCCCS Health Insurance. We will ask you to provide additional proof of any statements you make on your application that do not match information we get from someone else. If you and/or your representative knowingly provide false information, you and/or your representative will be subject to criminal prosecution, which could result in fines, imprisonment and/or other penalties under state or federal law. You may also be required to pay AHCCCS for AHCCCS Health Insurance you received while you were not eligible.

Cooperation With the Eligibility Agencies in Processing your Application

The AHCCCS Administration or the Department of Economic Security (DES) will see if you can get AHCCCS Health Insurance. Based on federal and state laws, a person who is eligible for Medicaid cannot be approved for KidsCare or the Premium Sharing Program. If someone listed on this application may be Medicaid eligible, your application will be completed by DES or AHCCCS. You may be asked to provide more information. If you do not give the information or proof needed, your application for AHCCCS Health Insurance cannot be approved.

For more information about your responsibilities, see page 6.

NON DISCRIMINATION

AHCCCS and DES do not discriminate on the basis of disability in admission to, access to or operation of its programs, activities, services or in its employment practices. AHCCCS and DES comply with the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990. If you need an accommodation to participate in an AHCCCS program, service or activity or this document in an alternate format or need translation assistance, please contact the AHCCCS ADA Coordinator at 602-417-4813 or 1-800-654-8713, ext. 4813.

Instructions for Completing This Application

Keep this page for your records

Name:

Who to include on the application:

If you are applying for you, your spouse, or children (younger than age 19) in your family, include yourself and everyone who lives with you and is:

- Your spouse;
- Your child (includes your stepchild);
- Your child's child(ren);
- Your child's spouse;
- Your child's other parent;
- Your parent(s) if you are under age 19;
- A child related to you who you are caring for; and
- Your child age 19 through 21 who is a student.

Include a person who normally lives with you but is temporarily not living with you because the person is working or is a child attending school.

If someone included on the application is pregnant, be sure to tell us. For some programs, children who are not yet born are counted as household members, which allows the family to have a higher income limit.

If you are applying for someone else (your parent, child who is age 19 or older, grandparent, friend, etc.), complete another application. Include the persons who are related to the person for whom you are applying (see list above). The person for whom you are applying needs to either sign the application on page 6 or complete Section E on page 1.

To speed up the processing of your application, send the information listed below with your application.

- Wages: Copies of check stubs or a statement from the employer showing the gross earnings last month and this month of everyone listed on this application. If someone listed on the application lost a job within the last two months, send proof of the last day worked and the gross amount of the last check received.
- Self-Employment: Copies of current Federal tax forms: 1040, SE and applicable schedules such as C, C-EZ, E, F, K-1, or proof of business income and expenses for the last calendar month. Proof of business income includes records, journals, or financial statements that show the date the income was received and the amount of income. Proof of business expenses includes receipts, bills, or canceled checks that show the date, the amount, and the type of expense.
- Child Support: Copies of the court order or child support payment history.
- Other Income: Proof of any other income or money received this month and last month from any source or for any reason. This includes letters from the Social Security Administration, Veterans Administration, Railroad Retirement, or other retirement or disability pension.
- Health Insurance: Copies of insurance ID cards for persons who are applying but who are currently covered by other health insurance.
- Citizenship: Copies of both sides of citizenship or immigration documents for persons who want AHCCCS Health Insurance and were not born in the United States or its territories. Receiving AHCCCS Health Insurance will not affect anyone's immigrant status. AHCCCS will not report any information to the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS).
- Daycare: Proof of amount billed for the care of a child or incapacitated adult so an adult in the household can work.
- Pregnancy: A signed letter from your doctor or nurse giving the expected date of delivery.
- Health Plan: Choose a health plan from the choices on the next page. If you are only applying for help with your Medicare costs, you do not need to choose a health plan.

Please answer all questions.
Use a pen, and print your answers clearly.

To get covered medical services you need to choose either a Health Plan that serves your county or Indian Health Services (IHS). All AHCCCS Health Plans provide the covered medical services listed on page A.

Before choosing, check with your doctor, pharmacy or hospital to see if they work with the plan that you want. If you are Native American and can receive services from IHS, you may select IHS as your AHCCCS Health Plan. If you have a question about a health plan that serves your county, call the number listed below for the health plan.
