Retiree Health Benefits

Pre-65 Retirees:

- Employer plans provide health coverage to more than 3 million retirees ages 55-64, assisting nearly 6 in 10 retirees in this age group
- Retiree health insurance bridges gap in coverage until Medicare eligibility

Age 65+ Retirees:

- Employer plans assist 1 in 3 seniors by supplementing Medicare
- Typically, Medicare is the primary payer
 - Employer plans help pay for benefits not covered by Medicare, such as Rx drugs
 - Also assist retirees with Medicare's cost-sharing requirements

Scope of 2003 Survey

- Detailed baseline of retiree health benefits prior to Medicare reform
- 408 large, private-sector firms, with 1,000+ employees, surveyed online between June 24 and September 12, 2003
- Included only companies offering retiree health plans
- Majority of firms are multi-state employers (90%), publicly traded (72%), and represent range of manufacturing (45%) and non-manufacturing (55%) industries
- Sample represents 45% of Fortune 100 companies and 30% of Fortune 500 companies
- Benefits impact 20.8 million employees and family members and 5.9 million (pre-65 and 65+) retirees and family members
- Estimated 3.9 million Medicare-eligible retirees and spouses – about 1/3 of the 12 million non-federal retirees with employer health coverage

Typical Retiree Health Benefits

- More than three-quarters of the largest age 65+ plans have an annual deductible
 - $250 for retirees/$500 for retirees and spouses
 - Deductible counts toward out-of-pocket limit for majority of plans
- Most have a limit on out-of-pocket spending for covered services
 - $1,500 for retirees/$3,000 for retirees and spouses
- Nearly all employers that provide health benefits to age 65+ retirees cover prescription drugs (93%)
 - Typically, as part of firm's retiree health plan, rather than stand-alone plan
 - 26% have separate Rx deductibles
 - 15% have separate Rx out-of-pocket maximum
- Benefit limits for prescription drugs are uncommon
 - 8% have separate limits on Rx benefit

Premiums

Premiums

- Premiums vary by a number of factors
 - Demographics of retirees (e.g., age), geography, and firm size
 - Plan type and plan design
 - Years of service
 - Date of retirement
- Premiums typically higher for pre-65 retirees because employer plans are sole source of coverage
 - For 65+ retirees, employer plan is typically secondary to Medicare
- New retirees may pay substantially more than previous generations of retirees

Conclusion/Perspectives

- In 2003 – before enactment of Medicare law – retiree plans offer generous benefits valued by retirees, but increasingly costly to maintain
 - Pressure on companies to balance retiree health costs with business needs, costs of other employee benefits, and global competition
 - Demographic pressures as well: 2:1 worker/retiree ratio
- Current retirees appear largely shielded from terminations, but future uncertain for current workers (future retirees)
 - Many will see plan design changes in the near future
 - 20% of employers say they are likely to terminate subsidized benefits for future retirees (often new hires)
- Employer reactions to new Medicare legislation are still being formulated and will play out over several years
 - Tax-free subsidies may help alleviate some cost pressure
 - Policymakers will be closely tracking subsequent trends

Survey Methods

The Kaiser Family Foundation/Hewitt Associates 2003 Survey of Retiree Health Benefits reports findings from a survey of 408 large private-sector firms (with 1,000 or more employees) that currently offer health benefits to retirees. These firms employ 8.3 million employees and have 3.6 million retirees, and provide health benefits that impact the lives of an estimated 20.8 million workers and family members and 5.9 million retirees and family members. These employers provide health benefits to an estimated 3.9 million Medicare-eligible retirees and their spouses, representing a third of the roughly 12 million nonfederal retirees with employer-sponsored health coverage. The overwhelming majority (90 percent) are multi-state employers that represent a broad range of manufacturing (45 percent) and non-manufacturing (55 percent) industries. In terms of employee size, 42 percent of surveyed companies have 1,000 to 4,999 employees, 19 percent have 5,000 to 9,999 employees, 15 percent have 10,000 to 19,999 employees, and 24 percent have 20,000 or more employees.

The survey was conducted online between June and September 2003. All premium and benefit design information presented in this report reflects responses for the surveyed employers' retiree health plans with the largest number of enrolled retirees. Such plans represent the majority of retirees with health coverage among surveyed employers. Premium information presented is for individuals who retire on or after January 1, 2003 – referred to as “new retirees.” The total premiums and retiree contributions to premiums are weighted by firm size and by the number of retirees in the largest employer health plan.
