

WOMEN AND HEALTH CARE:

A National Profile

SELECTED QUESTIONS FROM THE
2004 KAISER WOMEN'S HEALTH SURVEY

KAISER FAMILY FOUNDATION
JULY 2005

Methods

The questions in this abbreviated questionnaire include a subset of questions from the 2004 Kaiser Women's Health Survey, which was fielded between July 6 and September 26, 2004 in the continental United States. This nationally representative telephone survey was designed and analyzed by Kaiser Family Foundation staff in collaboration with Princeton Survey Research Associates International (PSRAI) and researchers from University of California, Los Angeles. The survey was administered to 2,766 women ages 18 and older. Interviews were conducted in either English or Spanish, depending on participants' preference. A shorter companion survey of 507 English-speaking men was conducted for the purposes of gender comparisons. Copies of the full survey instrument can be obtained by sending an e-mail to womenshealth@kff.org.

The 2004 questionnaire is largely based on the 2001 Kaiser Women's Health Survey, but was expanded to examine in more depth issues such as cost barriers, counseling and prevention, work and family health, and menopause. While much of the core surveys are directly comparable, there are many new questions in the 2004 version. In addition, in 2001, the survey was administered exclusively to the non-elderly population, women ages 18 to 64. In 2004, the sample was expanded to include seniors, women ages 65 and older, allowing the examination of important health care issues facing older women.

At least 20 attempts were made to complete an interview at every sampled telephone number, and calls were staggered over times of day and days of the week to maximize opportunities of making contact with a potential participant. All interview break-offs and refusals were contacted at least one additional time to attempt to convert to completed interviews. The average duration of each interview was 25 minutes.

The sample of women in this survey is based on a sample of disproportionate stratified random-digit telephone numbers. This survey also over-sampled African American and Latina women, as well as those in low-income households (defined as having incomes below 200% of the federal poverty level), so that sample sizes would be adequate to allow for subanalysis of these populations. This method was also intended to increase the number of women in the sample who were medically uninsured or Medicaid beneficiaries. The sample was then weighted using the Census Bureau's 2003 Annual Social and Economic Supplement (ASEC) that included all households in continental United States to adjust for variations in the sample relating to region of residence, age, education, race/ethnicity and marital status to provide nationally representative statistics.

Post-data collection statistical adjustments require analysis procedures that reflect departures from simple random sampling. PSRAI calculates the effects of these design features so that an appropriate adjustment can be incorporated into tests of statistical significance when using these data. The margin of sampling error is +/-2 percentage points for the total women sample, +/-4 percentage points for the men, and is larger for subgroups. Note that in addition to sampling error, there are other possible sources of measurement error, though every effort was undertaken to minimize these other sources. Sampling tolerances at the 95% confidence were used to evaluate statistically significant differences between proportions, and are noted with asterisks throughout the report.

Selected Questions

2004 Kaiser Women's Health Survey

Hello, my name is _____, calling from Princeton Survey Research. We are conducting a national survey about some important social and health issues. Our work is in partnership with a national healthcare foundation and we're not selling anything. May I please speak with the youngest female age 18 or older who is now at home? [IF YOUNGEST FEMALE IS NOT AT HOME NOW: Then may I speak with the oldest female age 18 or older who is now at home?]
