Kaiser Health Tracking Poll: February 2013

February 2013

This Kaiser Health Tracking Poll was designed and analyzed by public opinion researchers at the Kaiser Family Foundation led by Mollyann Brodie, Ph.D., including Liz Hamel, Claudia Deane, Sarah Cho, Bianca DiJulio, and Becky Hanna. The survey was conducted February 14-19, 2013, among a nationally representative random digit dial telephone sample of 1,209 adults ages 18 and older, living in the United States, including Alaska and Hawaii (note: persons without a telephone could not be included in the random selection process). Computer-assisted telephone interviews conducted by landline (602) and cell phone (607, including 321 who had no landline telephone) were carried out in English and Spanish by Princeton Data Source under the direction of Princeton Survey Research Associates International (PSRAI). Both the landline and cell phone samples were provided by Survey Sampling International, LLC. For the landline sample, respondents were selected by asking for the youngest adult male or female currently at home based on a random rotation. If no one of that gender was available, interviewers asked to speak with the youngest adult of the opposite gender. For the cell phone sample, interviews were conducted with the person who answered the phone.

The combined landline and cell phone sample was weighted to balance the sample demographics to match estimates for the national population data from the Census Bureau's 2011 American Community Survey (ACS) on sex, age, education, race, Hispanic origin, nativity (for Hispanics only), and region along with data from the 2010 Census on population density. The sample was also weighted to match current patterns of telephone use using data from the January-June 2012 National Health Interview Survey. The weight takes into account the fact that respondents with both a landline and cell phone have a higher probability of selection in the combined sample and also adjusts for the household size for the landline sample. All statistical tests of significance account for the effect of weighting. Weighted and unweighted values for key demographic variables are shown in the table below.

The margin of sampling error including the design effect for the full sample is plus or minus 3 percentage points. For results based on subgroups, the margin of sampling error may be higher. Sample sizes and margin of sampling errors for other subgroups are available by request. Note that sampling error is only one of many potential sources of error in this or any other public opinion poll.

The response rate calculated based on the American Association of Public Opinion Research's Response Rate 3 formula was 10 percent for the landline sample and 8 percent for the cell phone sample.

4. When you consider the best way to think about health care services provided by doctors, nurses, other health professionals, clinics, and hospitals, which one of the following three statements comes closest to your own opinion? (READ AND ROTATE 1-3, 3-1)

OPTION 1: Health care services are “private goods” that people should buy somewhat like cars and televisions, and based on what they want and can afford	21
OPTION 2: Basic health care services should be available to everyone, like public education, but people who can afford to should be able to buy more or better care, similar to paying for private schools	37
OPTION 3: All effective health care services should be universally available, provided to everyone as a right of citizenship and based on the services they need	40

5. People have different views about what affects their own health and the health of their families. Some people believe that health is an individual matter, determined by their own preferences, decisions, and actions, “we’re on our own”. Let’s say that they are 1 on a five-point scale. Other people believe that health is a community matter, with their own health affected by the health and well-being of others, “we’re in this together”. Let’s say that they are 5 on the five-point scale. On this scale, please indicate where you would place yourself. You can name any number between 1 and 5. [READ IF NECESSARY: Please indicate where you would place yourself on a 5-point scale, with 1 being “health is an individual matter, we’re on our own” and 5 being “health is a community matter, we’re in this together”]
